"Legal Research in Action: Kaitlyn's Law"
by Andrea Larios, Intern

"With summer temperatures on the rise, it's important to take extra precautions with your little ones. Over the past twenty years, many children have tragically lost their lives to the scorching heat that vehicles capture due to the negligence of caretakers or parents. Kaitlyn's Law is named after the case of six-month-old Kaitlyn Russell who passed away after being trapped in a hot car for over two hours. While this is only a California state law, these things happen all over the country. Let's look at three US cases where there have been similar occurrences..."
